Jackson Pond Preserve

With its diverse habitat and abundant plant and animal life, Heritage Conservancy's Jackson Pond Preserve serves as a wonderful example of our organization's mission in action. This 10-acre preserve consists of farmland, woodlands, and a pond, and we are thrilled to have had the opportunity to connect our community with it at Farm to Table!

A little bit about Jackson Pond Preserve:

- We received this property in 1972 from Bremner and Jane Jackson with the purpose that it be used for educational activities and serve as a wildlife preserve.
- It continues to serve as a great site for field trips for local schools. Through educational (and fun!) games such as pond bingo, predator vs. prey, and hikes around the property that include recording observations of plant and animal life, Heritage Conservancy staff members help students explore the diverse habitat and ecosystem of the pond.
- A local farmer uses the agricultural portion of the preserve to grow hay.
- The duckweed covering the surface of the pond is ecologically significant; it provides excellent habitat for frogs, turtles, and wood ducks. Canada geese inhabit the islands in the center of the pond.
- A local Eagle Scout project at Jackson Pond Preserve included brush clearing, trail clearing and other improvements on the property. They also raised funding for two picnic tables and a new bench for people to sit on while enjoying their beautiful surroundings.
- Forest Grove Presbyterian Church has been an excellent partner at this property by allowing us to park in their parking lot. Members of the church have also volunteered with us to help maintain the preserve.

We hope that you enjoyed connecting with this new location for our 7th annual Farm to Table! If you would like information about a guided tour of Jackson Pond Preserve, contact Shannon Fredebaugh at 215-345-7020, ext. 104.
